

Chronologically, this is the SAME searching page from page 9 of the last document and picks up right in its place for the continuing order of pages. No changes except for the addition of the cancel button at the bottom. This page should continue indefinitely until the cancel button is pressed.

The next slide INSTEAD OF the “Ryde requested from Gemma page” will be this. A mini drop down menu comes in from the right side of the screen with a series of options to press. For this page, the “Favorites” button will be pressed.

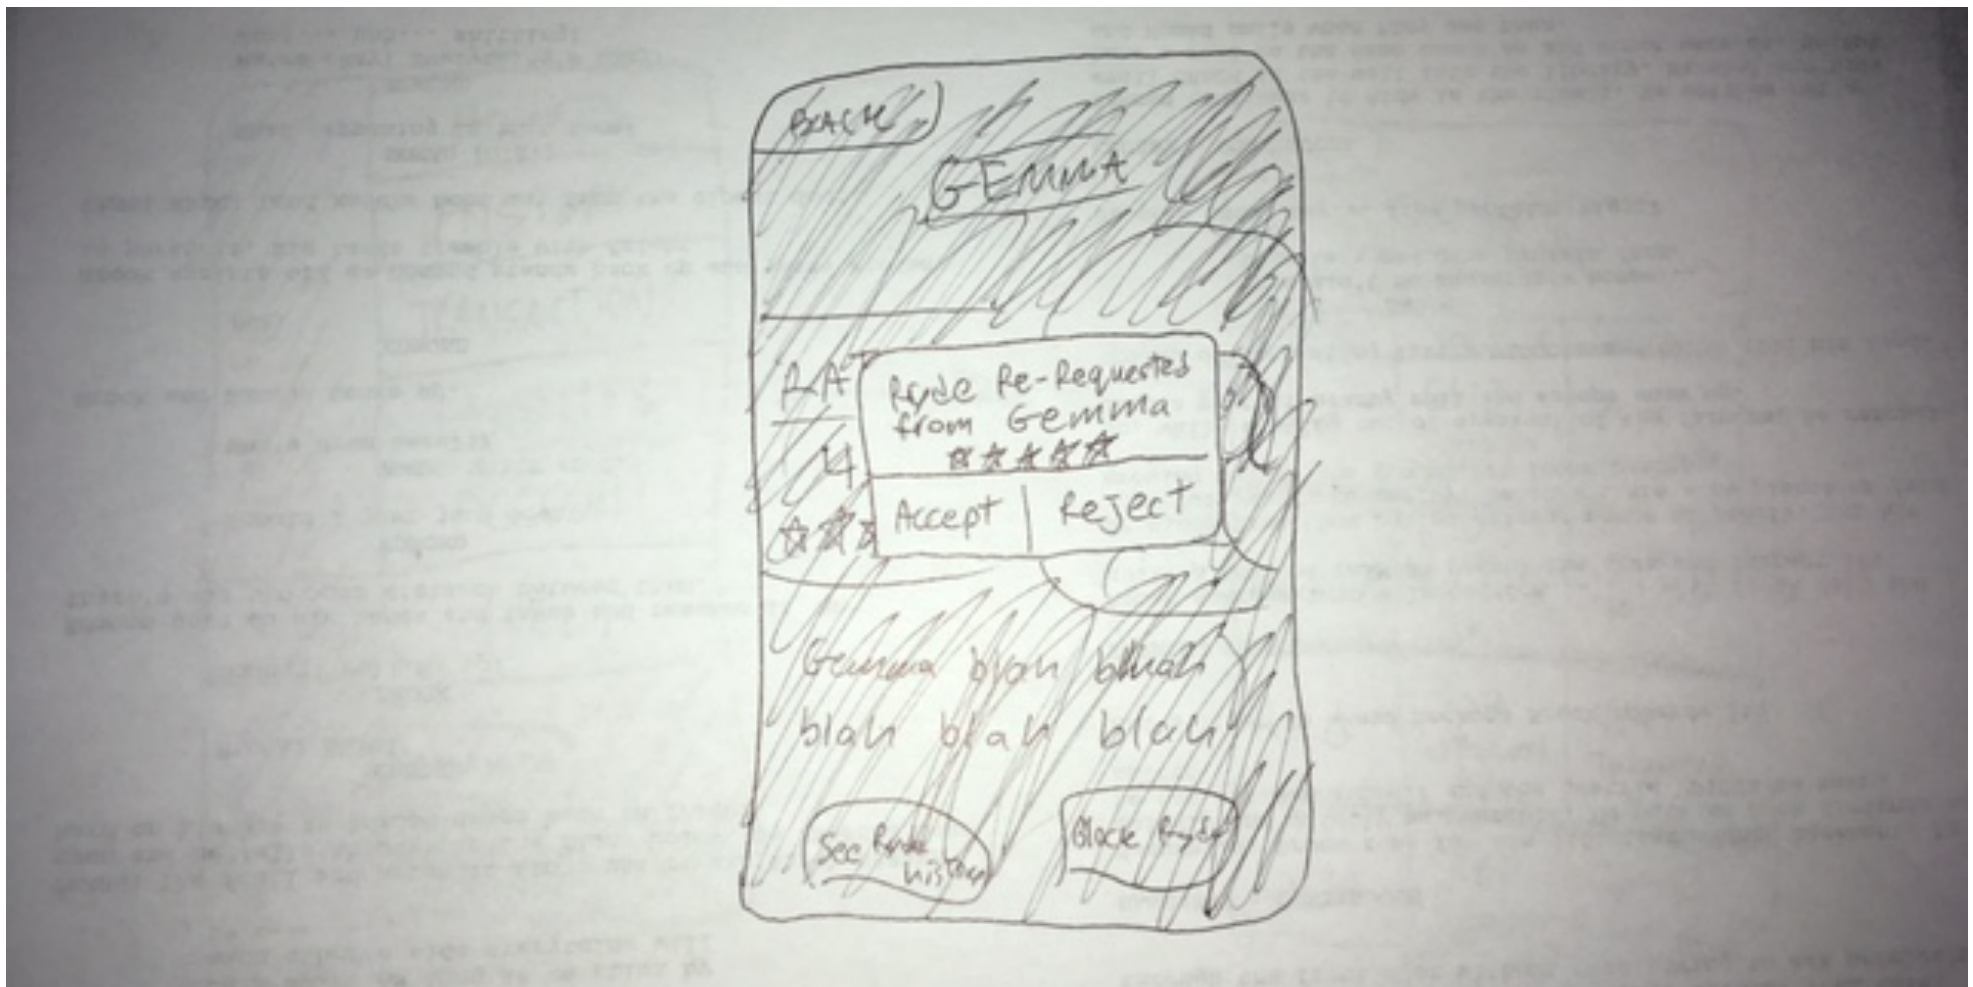

Next, a page listing the favorite ryders with a message explaining how the feature works. A list of names: Megan, Jeremy, Gemma, etc, with some quick info about them. It might be cool to add another name at the bottom but make it cut off, so the page looks like it should keep scrolling down (when in actuality it doesn't need to. This page will stay up until Gemma's name is pressed.

Next, a profile page for Gemma. Some info on her, some buttons at the bottom, and another little blurb kinda explaining how the requesting thing works. I've attached a picture of the actress playing Gemma that you can use for her profile photo. Nothing specifically on this page needs to be clickable. Tapping anywhere to bring us to the next page is fine.

Next, a notification reading “Ryde Re-Requested from Gemma” that will appear over the previous page, and darken the background.

These last two slides come at the end of EVERYTHING ELSE from the previous document. Just two last ones to tag on the end.

This page, the same drop down menu from before, but coming down on top of the final "Hello Sophia" page. This time holding until "History" is pressed.

The last page, a list of the riding history with names, pickups, and dropoffs listed. Similar to the "Your Favorite Ryders" page, maybe a name is cut off on the bottom to make the list look longer. The names of the streets are not very relevant for this page so you can alter or add them as needed, EXCEPT for "207 Willowcrest Ave" which is necessary for the film.
